

Candidates For Rhodes Stipends Sought at McGill

Sir Arthur Currie Wishes to See More Enthusiasm Here.

GREAT BENEFITS

Many Qualities Enter Into Consideration in Choosing Scholars.

By the terms of the will of the late Cecil Rhodes, a trust was founded by means of which deserving students from all parts of the world are afforded the opportunity of attending Oxford University. The time for the distribution of next year's scholarships is rapidly approaching, and the application forms giving full particulars in this regard are now obtainable at the office of the Registrar for all those students interested in this excellent opportunity.

Sir Arthur Currie stated in an interview yesterday that he was extremely sorry to see that there was not more interest taken in these scholarships. Considering that they are among the best known in the world, he thought that there should be a greater demand for them than there is. He stated that McGill has had many notable Rhodes Scholars in the past, but that there seemed to be a dearth of applicants for them at present.

Tenable at Oxford

A Rhodes Scholarship is tenable at the University of Oxford and may be held for three years. Since, however, the majority of Rhodes Scholars obtain standing which enables them to take a degree in two years, appointments are made for two years in the first instance, and a Rhodes Scholar who wishes to remain for a third year will be expected to present a definite plan of study for that period satisfactory to his college and the Rhodes Trustees.

The Scholarships are worth about £400 a year: Rhodes Scholars are not chosen by means of a written examination but on the basis of their school and college records.

A candidate to be eligible must be a male citizen of Canada and unmarried. He must also be between the ages of 19 and 25, and have completed at least his sophomore year in college. Candidates may apply either for the Province in which they have their ordinary domicile, or for any Province in which they may have received at least two years of their college education before applying.

Book Exchange Sales Diminish

Shortage of Books Most in Demand Given as Cause

There has been a drop in daily receipts from $240.00 taken in on Monday to $125.00 the sum collected yesterday according to a report of the Book Exchange Committee. This drop, it is stated, is due to the fact that the books in greater demand have not been brought down in as large quantities as had been expected.

Among the books wanted are the following: French: Masse-Initiation Economique; Lettres Persanes; Jacotot, France Qui Travaille; Des Granges-Morceaux Choisis; De Maupassant-Huit Contes; Janau-Commercial Correspondence; and others, especially third and fourth year Commerce books.

Science: Inorganic Chemistry-Caven and Lander; Organic Chemistry-Clark; Quantitative analysis-Fales; Newell's College Chemistry; Macpherson and Anderson-Chemistry Lab. Exercises in Chemistry (1st year). Black and Dawes: Practical Physics. Economics and History: Robinson-History of Western Europe; Marshall-Principles of Economics; Gide-Principles of Economics; Leacock-Elements of Political Science. Sociology: Dawson and Getys-Sociology. Also Murray's Calculus and elementary Trigonometry, Algebra and Geometry books.

Col. Bovey to Speak At Middletown

Lieut-Col. Wilfrid Bovey, director of the department of Extra-Mural Relations will give a lecture at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., on October 16. The subject of Col. Bovey's lecture will be "Quebec Past and Present" and deal with the history, geography and modern economic development of the province.

Newman Club To Hold Informal Opening Dance

TOMORROW evening, October 8th, at 8.30, the Newman Club of McGill, an association having as its purpose the closer bringing-together of Catholic students at McGill, will hold an informal evening in the Congress Hall, corner Dorchester and St. Alexander Sts.

Emile Latulipe, president of the Club, has arranged a very attractive program, and an enjoyable evening may be anticipated by everyone. During the first part of the evening, several members of the Club will entertain the company with piano-selections; later an informal dance will be held for which a very good orchestra has been provided.

This gathering, although intended primarily to give the Freshman the opportunity to become better acquainted with their fellow-members, is also intended for the pleasure of members of every Year and Faculty.

Dr. C. Leonard Huskins to Do Research Work

HAS FAMOUS RECORD

Study of Heredity To Be Encouraged By Authorities

The arrival at McGill University of Dr. C. Leonard Huskins, formerly a geneticist and cytologist at the John Innes Horticultural Institute in London, England, marks the commencement of very important developments at the university. The general subject of genetics, with which Dr. Huskins will deal, has many ramifications touching inheritance of all characteristics in plants and animals.

It has long been the desire of McGill authorities to make it possible for intensive research in genetics to be carried out at the university and Dr. Huskins' appointment is the result of a policy which has been receiving careful consideration for some time. The work already done in this direction at Macdonald College at Ste. Anne's is widely known, and the development of research work, in connection with both animals and plants, has brought important and useful results. The existence of facilities at the faculty of agriculture, as well as those in Montreal, ensure exceptional opportunities for study and research of this subject, the importance of which has become more and more widely recognized.

Brilliant Career

C. Leonard Huskins, B.S.A. (Alberta), M.Sc. (Alberta), Ph.D. (London), comes to McGill with an enviable reputation as authority and expert on this subject. Born in England, he came out to Canada with his family when quite young, and later took his college course at the University of Alberta, being awarded his B.S.A. degree in 1923, his M.Sc. in 1925. He then proceeded to England with an 1861 Exhibition scholarship and attended the University of London where he studied under Prof. R. Ruggles Gates, graduate of Dalhousie and McGill, who is now professor of botany at King's College, University of London. In 1927 Prof. Huskins received his Ph.D., at London, and then became a member of the research staff of the John Innes Horticultural Institute. (Continued On Page Four)

New Course in Voice Culture And Diction

Classes For Adults and Children by Miss Wadley

The Department of Extra-Mural Relations announces the formation of two courses in Voice Production and Diction, one for adults, the other for children. These courses will be conducted by Miss Gwendolen Wadley, A.L.A.M., who has had much experience in this work.

The aim of the course for adults is to further good voice production and enunciation. Clearness of speech, purity of tone, increase in volume may all be attained under the guidance of Miss Wadley. Having conquered the fundamentals of speaking the pupil will then be shown gestures, good movement, etc. Special attention will also be given to the invaluable art of reading.

The course for children will be along similar, but slightly modified

Modern Printing Combines Best In Printer's Art

Striking Specimens of Printer's Art Displayed in Library

RARE COPIES

Dr. Lomer Outlines Tendencies in Modern Typography

Modern trends in typography form the subject of this week's exhibit at the entrance to the Redpath Library. A few outstanding books have been selected and arranged to show typical tendencies in the book-making of today.

The beauty of the printed page is the aim in some cases; in others it is the attempt to catch and hold the eye by means of design and color which are the dominant impulses.

Worthy of note is the fact that all these works, whether stressing mainly, either the typography or the embellishment of the text through decoration, have as a common end the combination of the beauty of the old printing masters with the best elements of modern art, producing a form of art which we might almost call, both old and new.

Types of Books

The books on exhibition represent the finest done today in both Europe and America.

Notable among them are a number of which the most striking is undoubtedly an illuminated edition of Goethe's "Faust", prepared from the original manuscript of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe. This volume is, to the uninitiated, probably the outstanding one of the exhibit, both on account of the beauty of its very old-fashioned type, and the striking way in which it is printed alternating red and black ink in successive paragraphs. The latter are introduced by strikingly illuminated capitals. This volume is the work of a Swiss printer in Zurich, and like all the other books in the exhibit, is one of a very limited edition.

Beautiful Illustrations

Our attention is likewise attracted to a volume containing all the extant works of Francois Rabelais, including some drawings by the author and a number of very beautiful illustrations in brilliant colors by Jean de Bosschere.

Copies of Dante's "Divine Comedy", and Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" are also found in the exhibit; the latter are decorated on the margins, by some figures in color of the Canterbury Pilgrims, taken from the Ellesmere manuscript of the work.

The ever-fascinating tale of "Robinson Crusoe" is given new color and beauty in a volume published in a limited number by a San Francisco firm.

Among the works, one of whose main features is its wood-cuts, the translation of De La Motte Fournelle's "Uranie" is outstanding by virtue of the excellent work of the artist, Allen Lewis.

Commerce Elect Craig as Head

Bell Choice of Business Men Juniors For Vice President

Gib Craig was re-elected president of Commerce '32 at the first regular meeting of the class in the smoking room of the Arts Building yesterday noon. Other officers elected were Max Bell, as Vice-President and Bryce Grayson-Bell as Secretary-Treasurer.

Bob Bowman was elected representative to the Annual Board and Phil Davis representative to the Junior Prom Committee. Leo Hollingsworth is in charge of class publicity. A vote of thanks to last year's executive was moved and carried. Eric Allison is again in charge of the Class Debating Society which will get under way soon. A busy and eventful year is expected by the executive.

Lines, raucous and ill-modulated voices may, in due time, be eliminated, and in their stead clearness and resonance will be substituted. Opportunity will also be given to the children to learn to recite properly, particular care being taken in the art of expression and the formation of the vowel and consonant sounds.

Each course will consist of twenty-four weekly classes, commencing the week of Oct. 13, 1930. Further information as to fees and hours may be had at the office of the Comptroller, McGill University.

McGilliad Staff Announced For Current Season

THE first meeting of the executive of the McGilliad to discuss business matters for the coming year was held yesterday afternoon. Two vacancies were left through the graduation of Al. Watt and K. M. Kline.

The staff for the present year consist of: Editor: David Lewis; Associate Editors: K. N. Cameron, May Nelland, R. Levine; Business Manager: G. B. Craig; Chairman of executive: Alan Edson. The first issue of the McGilliad will be published on or before November 1st. Preparations for this issue are going ahead quite rapidly. The subscription campaign starting next week will be conducted throughout the College and, considering the number of students at McGill, the response should be sufficient to insure the financial success of the McGilliad.

Contributions for the McGilliad from all faculties, not just from Arts, may be given to any of the executive or handed to Bill Gentleman and can also be received at the Tuck Shop as soon as possible.

Webster, Eve Yuile, Maycock Ebbitt And Allison Outline Aims

Plans for the coming season were outlined at the annual meeting of the Players' Club, held yesterday afternoon in the Union Ballroom. Prominent among the speakers were Millard Astwood, president of the Students' Council, and Mr. Cecil West who has directed several of the club's productions. For the benefit of newcomers, several of the officers of the club outlined its aims and policy.

The first to address the meeting was President Dick Webster, who issued an invitation to all present to join with the club. He outlined the activities of the club, stressing the fact that not only actors were needed, but also men and women to handle the production and business ends.

Advantages Cited

The advantages that were gained by joining the club were enumerated. Special privileges had been granted to members of the club by His Majesty's Theatre, by which active members could obtain the best of seats at $1.10 on certain nights. Besides this there was the special Players' Club room, an advantage which no other undergraduate society possessed.

Dick Eve, who was next, spoke of the decline of the legitimate theatre in Montreal. More and more, he stated, Montrealers were turning to the amateur societies to supply the missing drama and of these societies, the McGill Players' Club could be considered as very nearly the best.

The next speaker, Mr. Cecil West turned back the pages of history and recalled the first meeting of the Players' Club at which there were only eight members. Looking over the well-filled room he stated that the players club was without doubt a "going concern" and that if everyone pulled together there was little to fear for the future.

Some Lamps of Culture Named By J. Thompson

St. James Literary Society Hears Presidential Address

DEBATING PRAISED

Language, Debate, Criticism, Wit Humor and Literature Discussed

A capacity audience attended the opening meeting of the St. James Literary Society at the Engineers Institute last night. The occasion of the meeting was an address on "Some Lamps of Culture" by the president of the society, James B. Thompson. The seven lamps of culture on Mr. Thompson's list were language, conversation, debate, criticism, wit, humor and literature. The speaker admitted that art, music, and drama are also lamps of culture, but he did not deal with them. "Culture only properly expresses the meaning of the Latin humanitas. It is what marks and distinguishes the gentleman, but any man may get as much of it as he wants, for education is easily obtainable.

Abuse of Language

Language is the first lamp of culture. "In books alone are preserved the treasures of wisdom which the world has accumulated, and by them alone are these treasures handed down to succeeding generations," says Trench. Words endure as long as the things they represent. A man christens a range of mountains and the name lasts as long as the mountains themselves. To use words rightly is a pleasure and should be an obligation. The English language is a difficult one for foreigners to learn to speak correctly. We have only to consider the different pronunciations of "ough" in rough, cough, plough, to realize this. It is also a hard language to teach, for all adverbs do not end in -ly, nor are all words ending in -ous adjectives. We should also be careful of style. One word is not as good as another, and it is the happy choice of the word which expresses exactly the right shade of meaning which marks a great author. Slang, which was originally used as humor, is now predominant everywhere and must be avoided. Oaths are also unnecessary. "Language is a moral barometer which denotes the rise and fall of a nation's life."

Conversation is Lost Art

Quebec Lectures Again Arranged

Col. Bovey Announces Series To be Held in Old Capital

The department of Extra-Mural Relations has arranged to give a series of lectures and entertainments during the current year in Quebec City, announced Lieut-Col. Wilfrid Bovey, head of the department. A similar series was given last year in the provincial capital and met with such success that it was decided to conduct another set of lectures and entertainments there this winter.

Six lectures to be given by members of the teaching staff of the university and a play by the McGill Players Club will comprise the series of entertainments this year. The Players Club have selected the "Ivory Door" for their production in Quebec. The six lectures to be given are as follows: "Quebec past and present", by Col. Wilfrid Bovey, director of the department of Extra-Mural Relations. This lecture will be illustrated and deal with historical sites and scenes and modern developments; "The Meaning of Dreams" by Dr. J. W. Bridges; "Musical Appreciation for the Layman" by Douglas Clarke, Dean of Faculty of Music, "Northern Lights", by Dr. A. S. Eve, Director of the department of Physics; "The Hudson Bay Co.", by T. W. L. MacDermot, assistant professor of History, "Three Weeks in a third class Spanish Railway coach", by P. L. McCullagh, of the department of Classics.

R.V.C. Undergrad

The opening meeting of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society will be taking place tomorrow at one o'clock in the R.V.C. Common Room. All woman students are members and are requested to be present. Freshettes especially shall attend as the meeting shall be of particular interest to them.

Lawyers Choose B. Alexandor As New Councillor

IN choosing a representative to the Student's Executive Council the Faculty of Law yesterday accorded an acclamation to Bernard M. Alexandor, sometime President of the Debating Union Society and McGill's representative on the debating team which toured England two years ago. The election fills the vacancy left by Lawrence Hart who has been forced to retire, and brings the Council up to its full quota of members.

Alexandor is a McGill graduate in Arts, proceeding into Law three years ago. His main interests have been found in debating and public speaking. He was and is a prominent figure at all meetings of the Debating Union Society.

The nomination was signed by C. W. Leslie, Gordon Davidson, H. Weir Davis, J. Alex. Edmondson, H. J. Erdlich, Wm. M. Ford, H. C. Goldenberg, G. E. Osler, E. Latulipe and James A. Mullaly.

Shows Canadian Wants in Britain

Professor Thompson Writes On Canadian Markets

MUST SELL SERVICE

Local Managers Essential to Handle Branches Abroad

Prof. R. R. Thompson of the School of Commerce at McGill, in an article, printed in the London Morning Post, made many timely suggestions to British manufacturers in regard to the establishment of branch factories in Canada. He wrote as follows:

"Canada as a market for manufactured goods is growing rapidly in size and value," Professor Thompson points out, "but a large fraction of these goods must be suitable to Canadian needs, or their loss in utility is great, and Canadians will naturally avoid unsuitable for suitable articles. Again, for certain classes of goods it must be possible to alter them, carry out repairs, replace parts, or replace the goods entirely within a few days."

Must Sell Service

"Manufacturers must be prepared, nowadays, not merely to sell their goods, but to help their customers to get the best use out of them, and to maintain them as well. They must not only sell goods but service. Proximity of the manufacturer to his market is so vital in many cases that the Atlantic Ocean far outweighs the advantage of British preference, whilst the U. S. A. manufacturer can give the Canadian buyer the exact goods he needs in a few days."

In his article, among other tips, Professor Thompson advises British manufacturers to enter the Canadian field with up-to-date machinery, to choose a manager on account of his business ability rather than his family connections, and not to attempt to manage a concern which required local knowledge and quick local decisions, from a distance of 3,000 miles.

Lord Willingdon Offers Awards in Arts Competition

Open to British Subjects Resident in Canada

FOUR SECTIONS

Music, Literature, Painting and Sculpture Each Alotted Prizes

A folder has just been received by Sir Arthur Currie, announcing that the Willingdon Arts Competition which was held last year, will be repeated. Lord Willingdon expressed the hope in a personal note to Sir Arthur, that he might see more McGill students taking part in the competition this year than last.

In offering certain prizes for competition again this year, with the view of furthering and encouraging the cultivation of the Arts and Letters, His Excellency wishes to emphasize the fact that this Competition is "open". The word "open" is interpreted to mean that professional teachers and professionals and amateurs are all eligible for competition upon equal terms. His Excellency feels that hitherto this has not been entirely understood.

The Prizes will be as follows:—

Music—Three prizes of One hundred dollars each.
Literature—Four prizes of Seventy-Five dollars each. (Two for English and two for French).
Painting—One prize of Two Hundred dollars.
Sculpture—One prize of Two Hundred dollars.

His Excellency has appointed Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, Mr. Eric Brown, The Hon. Martin Burrell, Monsieur Louvigny de Montigny, Mr. Edgar Birch and Mr. Arthur Beauchamp to be an Advisory Committee for the purpose of organizing these Competitions.

General Conditions

- (a)—The Competition limited to British Subjects in Canada.
- (b)—No award will be made unless, in the opinion of the Judges, the work submitted reaches an adequate standard of merit.
- (c)—The decision of the Judges and the Advisory Committee must, in every case, be accepted as final.
- (d)—Each manuscript should bear a motto or 'nom de plume' and should be accompanied by a sealed envelope with the same motto written on the outside of the envelope and containing the name of the author. This rule applies to exhibits in Music and Literature only.
- (e)—The Competitions are in every class "open", that is to say, amateurs, (Continued On Page Two)

Tumult Marks Arts '31 Voting

Hutchins Returns to Chair After One Year's Absence

Another class, it appears, is ready to step into the shoes of Law '30 and keep the University going. According to all indications the seniors in Arts this year will furnish, the life, the spice, everything in campus affairs. Their first class meeting yesterday was conducted amidst the usual scenes of confusion when great men get together. The tumult subsided just long enough, after the retiring president banded his head on the table to call for silence, for one John Anderson Hutchins to be returned after one year's absence from the position of President of Arts '31.

At various stages of the proceedings certain groups made themselves heard over the clamour enough for them to nominate and elect one of themselves to some office. Eventually most of the gathering were elected to some position or other, the complete list being as follows:

President: J. A. Hutchins; Vice-President: Fred Stone; Secretary: J. G. McNaughton; Treasurer: George Chailles; Hockey Manager: Dave Tough; Chairman of Debating Society: W. P. Sprenger; Chairman of Monthly Luncheon Committee: Ken MacNamee.

Dr. Eve to Address Physical Society

Dr. A. S. Eve, Director of the Department of Physics will speak at the first meeting of the Physical Society to be held in the Main Theatre, Macdonald Physics Laboratory 5.05 p.m., on Friday, October tenth. The subject of the Dean's speech will be "New Geophysical Problems, Kentucky and Sudbury."

Rhodes Scholarships

WHEN Cecil Rhodes, visionary and Empire Builder, died early in the present century he left in his will a fund for the establishment of certain Scholarships at Oxford, to be known by his name and to be open to students from every part of the Empire and from the United States. The object of his benefaction was to promote, through intellectual channels, the amity of the English speaking nations.

Rules and regulations were, to a large extent omitted from the will. There was, however, provision as to the choosing of the students. Committees were established in recognized political and geographical localities to select from the district the two applicants proving the most promising young men, taking into consideration scholastic ability, literary aptitude, athletic interest and also the indefinable quality of recognized leadership.

Each fall a small army of new Rhodes Scholars take up residence at Oxford and as they progress in their three years of study many of them forget that they are the visible, outward symbols of international amity and the object of Cecil Rhodes is quite lost in a tendency among American, Canadian, Australian and other scholars to congregate together in colonies instead of really mixing with the English people and above all, with English students. Recent visitors at Oxford maintain that the segregation of a great number of the Rhodes Scholars has progressed to the extent that they are practically an independent unit in the undergraduate community. These, we suppose, live out their term at the ancient university, refusing to be assimilated and stubbornly keeping to the customs of the home-land. They return in the end; wax fat in the practice of law and die without recognizing the true value of the years spent in England.

Some others, a discouragingly small number, mingle with the English and absorb something of their culture. In this latter group the dream of Cecil Rhodes finds its consummation.

The Quebec Committee has just called for applications, and regardless of whether the appointees are McGill men, or University of Montreal men or students at any of the other colleges of the province, we hope that they will carry to Oxford with them something of the splendid vision which moved the founder of the fund.

An Opportunity

STUDY and the pursuit of learning should not be the only reason why young men and women come to college. Though we admit that furthering one's education is the primary reason for attendance at a university, yet we should consider other elements besides purely materialistic ones. Undoubtedly one of the greatest assets that we obtain from attending college is the friendships and pleasant associations we make through coming into contact with our fellow students.

No other place or institution affords so many opportunities for making lasting friends as college does. A university, with its many clubs and activities, both athletic and otherwise is without doubt an ideal place for friendships to be born. To some of us the idea of making friends may seem foolish, but once you have graduated and are out in the world seeking your own livelihood, perhaps many miles from your home and those dear to you; you will undoubtedly regret the fact that you didn't make any real friends while going through college. Happy is the person who is surrounded by friends and happy is he who, when away from all his friends, still enjoys the pleasure of hearing from them.

The friendships that are made at college are generally lasting and it must afford much satisfaction to one who already has passed the allotted span to know that though he has perhaps only a few more years to live, yet they will be happy ones because he wisely saw fit to surround himself with friends in his youth. It is not our intention to either define or explain friendship; as it is a subject of universal interest, and occupies a large space in all literature from the earliest times to the present. But we do wish to urge the students attending McGill, and especially the freshmen, to cultivate the spirit of friendship, and endeavor, as opportunity permits, to make friends of those you find worthy of friendship, and this, of course, means that you should be worthy of the friendship of others.

Hark! Hark!

PERHAPS the anti-vivisectionists, in spite of the opposition of medical students, have finally won their case, and instead of the specimens for the McGill laboratories being killed for the advancement of science, they are being kept alive and kicking, and the situation has become something like that in the station in "Pigs is Pigs." Or it may be that one of the buildings on the campus has been leased to a certain theatre which is running a thriller this week and they are using it to store their properties, including their offstage noise-machines. Whatever may be the cause it is certain that an inferno of barking dogs is raising one terrible row behind the Arts Building these days. The matter was brought up as a formal protest at a meeting of the Arts seniors yesterday, and their opinion is held also by all others who take classes on the second floor. Even George Bernard Shaw would weaken in his prejudices if he were forced to sit through one hour with these blood-curdling yelps ringing in his ears.

THE ONLOOKER

Mr. H. L. Manken has been married by a clergyman to a young lady from the Southern States, which event was subsequent to his being made an honorary member of a Kiwanis Club in Alabama. After this, nothing would surprise us—Not even Philip Matthews singing "Rule Britannia" and holding debutantes' hands.

A recent reviewer claims that "Beauty consists of charming femininity, expressive grace and physical allure." The Hon. George McTeer tells us, between cigar puffs, that this definition is all right with him.

"Paul Robeson, Negro" is a book of more than ordinary interest. While biographies of husbands by more or less adoring wives usually require critical reviewing, nevertheless this one is valuable if only for the interesting and romantic information it gives us. Here we are introduced to Paul Robeson—grandson of slaves, Rutgers University letter man, football, basketball, baseball and track, All-American football player, Phi Beta Kappa key, honour graduate of Columbia Law School, star actor and singer in "Emperor Jones" and "Show-boat" now taking London by storm in "Othello." The more we read about Robeson the more we are led to say "This is a man"—and the K.K.K. and the Jay Crow brigade will have great difficulty in convincing us otherwise!

And those who are inclined to doubt the versatility of the modern woman would do well to peruse the following want ad which appeared in a recent issue of the Manitoba Free Press . . .

VICTORIA BEST, PSYCHOLOGIST

Noted Mentalist. Great sight. Business, Marriage, all matters. Expert. Hours, 11 to 9. Also lovely art hand-painted dishes, cards, pictures for sale. Also art teacher by mail. Studio 414 fourth floor, Toronto General Trusts Bldg., 283 Portage Ave.

The following cable has just been received (collect) from the Rev. A. Gordon Nairn, erstwhile McGill "oldest living undergraduate" who is now in a law school in Paris:—

"Am busy seeing all the art galleries, historical joints and old churches and hope to get it over with soon. More interesting news next week."

From New York comes a book with a rather intriguing name "Love Letters of a Genius." That they are love letters there is apparently not much doubt. That they were written by a genius is perhaps harder to decide. However, as one reviewer points out, the book may yet be quoted on account of this epigram, "A woman only gives the name of sin to the things she cannot have."

More McGill men never had a chance on Saturday last with both R.M.C. and West Point cadets in town. We all went into total romantic ecstasies as the young ladies were thrilled by the uniforms and dreamt of the Lovers' Walk on the bank of the Hudson and of the June Ball in Kingston. 'Twas ever thus!

Guy Curtis is dead and Queens University has lost its famous traditional athlete hero. Curtis was probably Canada's greatest football and hockey player in the nineties and he definitely put Queens on the athletic map. He was the perennial coach and captain of tri-color teams for many years and Queens graduates never tire of recounting his exploits. After college he retired to the rural oblivion of an Ontario village and for twenty-five years has been more a legend and a myth to Queens students than a real person. As generation after generation of Kingston students continue to sing "Remember Captain Curtis and the Conquerors of Yale" one is made to realize that athletic glory is not so fleeting after all.

Sinclair Lewis says that he really is fond of his Babbitt. Sure—and Mr. Matthews loves the C.O. T.C.—and Mayor Houdou thinks Alderman Desroches is an old dear—and the K.K.K. are sweet on pullman porters—and the financiers simply dote on J. S. Woodsworth, M.P.!

COLLEGE COMMENT

STRIKE A HAPPY MEDIUM

Freshmen enrol Friday and there may be expected the usual amount of upperclassmen advising the beginners to take nine courses.

It would be unwise for any freshman to start in with too difficult a course. Too many have become discouraged as a result of such a mistake and quit school without the proper opportunity.

On the other hand the mistake of taking a course that is too easy has been made even more frequently. Casting aside the important argument that one should go to school to get something, there still remains the important fact that one can't continue the pipe course line all thru college and an easy start will mean trouble later.

There is a happy medium.

ESSAY ON SPACE

Space is very spacious. Its spaciety is realized more vividly under some conditions than others. The man who fell out of an aeroplane got disgusted at space. The editor of a college newspaper gets disgusted at space. The editor of a college newspaper gets disgusted at space also at times. One definition of space is that it is what a freshman looks at while the prof. is busy lecturing. Another is that it's what we have so much of, yet can't do anything with it except fill it occasionally. Space has been also referred to as the place where a freshman's brains should be.

Space is a great thing. The fellow on a crowded street car can well appreciate the minimality of his pedal spaciety. We have seen several couples passing the campus which were occupied by several couples and much space yet to spare.

All in all, space is a great subject to fill. That's why we wrote this.

DRINKLESS DRINKING FOUNTAINS

Scattered conveniently about the building of the Arts campus are marble monuments stiff suffering from the summer drought.

A twist of their shiny handles reveals no trickle of that indispensable liquid known in collegiate circles as Duck's Delight, Sky Juice, or water. "Gone dry with the rest of the country," remarked one freshman after he had chipped his front teeth seeking relief from a long recitation.

Some of the newcomers may believe the water scarcity is placed on an every other day basis, but the old heads know otherwise. Day in and day out they face classes with parched lips and cracked throats.

Why must students put up with these conditions? Is there not enough water in Denver? To quench their thirst for water, or is the emphasis all being placed on an attempt to quench the thirst for knowledge?

—The Denver Clarion.

THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL

A significant step showing progress among women's educational ideas should be undertaken by energetic Vassar. Just as in the past hundred years, forces around Cambridge created a university "annex," so should the new thinkers of Poughkeepsie demand a Vassar School for Men. The needs of the two centuries are surprisingly similar, though the tables are happily turned. The suppressed student of today, thirsting for knowledge of nursing and child-rearing, is the poor male. There are many weighty arguments for male suffrage and the matter should be given more than passing attention. The educational opportunities Vassar offers, in addition to no uncertain social prestige, have formerly had geographical limitations. Residence near Vassar has been found almost imperative by most of the students. A well-endowed School for Men, with ample laboratory and dormitory facilities would affect the enrollment at Harvard, Yale, and Princeton and would present a much-needed solution to the admission boards of Eastern Universities.

CLOCK WATCHERS

Since the opening of the fall quarter there is one sound that has not been heard on the Baylor campus. There have been no class bells. For the first few days professors blamed themselves for poor hearing, but it is beyond that point now, and the absence of the bells at the end of each class is distinctly noticeable.

We have always been told that clock watchers never get anywhere, but that is exactly what Baylor students and professors have become, just a large group of clock watchers. But how could they be otherwise as long as there are no bells to signal the beginning of class periods? It stands to reason that Baylor professors and students do not have railroad time, and therefore somebody is eternally late to class.

A student goes to a class only to find that he is ten minutes late. He immediately gets "hauled" out. When in reality it is no fault of his own, for the professor for the hour before forgot to watch his clock. The situation is beginning to become a bit unhandy.

Yesterday we sat in a class listening to a lecture. The door was open; the class members were attentive to the professor's lecture. All of a sudden a student rushed madly in from the hall and took a vacant chair. Suddenly his face became red. His watch was wrong; he came too early.

It stands to reason that a Baylor professor be at his best and watch the clock at the same time. If he must divide his time between teaching and watching the clock, the latter procedure will tell in the quality of lecture he gives.

We don't know what the trouble is; we do know that the bell system is not working; we know that it should be working. Professors and students have a right to be free from the ordeal of "clock watching." Students have the right to be free from unnecessary blame in coming to classes late when some professor keeps them too long because he has not watched his clock closely enough. And we would not be surprised to see them demand it.

What we need right now is bells, and more bells; we can find something else to need later.

Students Sling Hash For Board

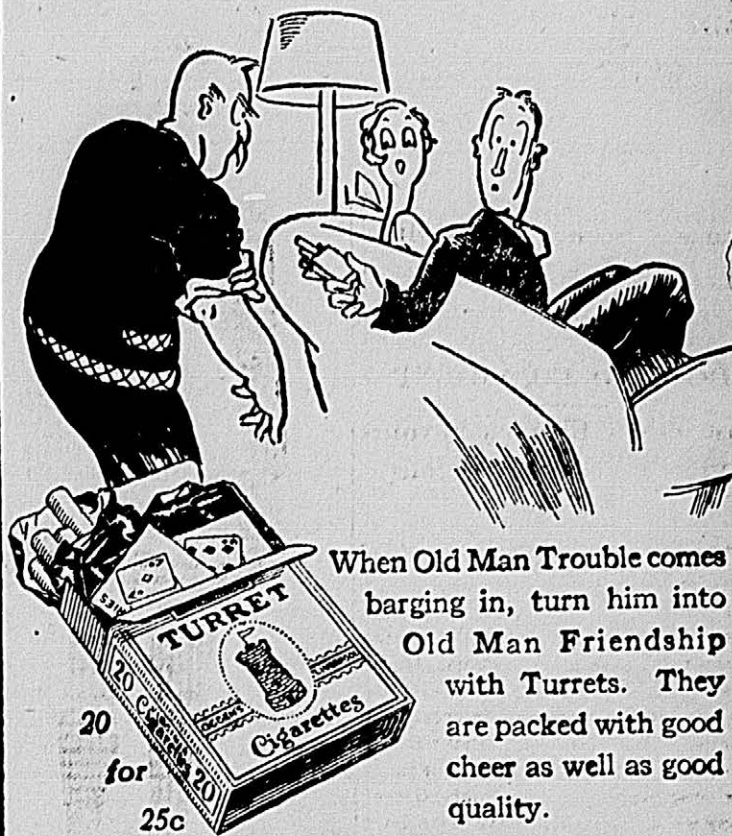

Morgantown, W. Va.,—Besides Miss Maymo Waddell, manager, and the kitchen help, there are fourteen students who work from one to three hours daily in the West Virginia University Cafeteria for their board. Among these students practically every school on the campus is represented. There are two from the School of Medicine, three from the College of Engineering, two from the division of physical education, four from the department of home economics, one from the College of Law, and two from the College of Education.

high school graduates who enter colleges in the United States this autumn to find that no truer representative of the collegiate type.

We agree with G. Herbert Smith, dean of freshmen at the University of Illinois, when he says that the collegian of today is rarely a bit "collegiate." A college student soon discovers that he is too busy in getting an education, engaging in extra-curricular activities and taking part in the social life of his particular fraternity to spend time trying to follow the careless, reckless, joy-riding stereotype on the screen and in the pages of modern fiction.

DOCTORS CONFIDENT Last Year's Champs Favoured to Repeat—Law Lions Workout

EVERYTHING is all set for the opening of the Interfaculty Football Schedule tomorrow afternoon when the hitherto unheralded Science aggregation stacks up against Medicine, last year's champs on the Campus at 3.00. To date the interest and enthusiasm aroused in the various faculties that have entered squads in this 1930 has been very high. Secret practices by all teams have been held and it is expected that an excellent brand of interfaculty football will be uncoiled during the coming campaign.

Manager Kyle urges that all players be medically examined before their game, the penalty being a loss to the opposing side. Other rules with regards to the league were published in Monday's daily, and they are to be urgently adhered to.

Press Box Comments Law Lions Workout

At high noon yesterday, the Law football Moguls gathered for their initial workout of the season. A board of managers and coaches was immediately appointed and a solemn conclave was held. It was found out that all men were in condition, due to heavy summer vacationing and as a result, a signal drill was the only order of the day.

Head Coach Fred Urquhart directed the plays in a Rockne style, and for a while many of the boys were in tears. Chris Cagle McMaster was at the flying wing position with Eberts, Home and Mackay comprising the backfield. Munich and Talpis alternated at quarter with Levine at snap. There was a dearth of material for the other positions, and it was announced that Walsh, Mullaly, Schwartz, Erdrich, Du Boyce, Hayes, McNally, Davis, Davidson, Binnie, Slapack, Friedman, Osler and LeMoine would be called upon to assume the remaining roles.

A large gathering of fans forced the retirement of the squad to the Law building where a blackboard drill was resorted to. On paper, the Law lions look like heavy contenders for the title. It is rumored that the odds, which were formerly at about 15 to 1 against them, have now shifted to the even mark, and much legal tender is expected to change hands when the lawyers stack up against Commerce on Friday afternoon next.

Training table arrangements have been made at a local emporium, within close vicinity of the campus and it is also rumored that law scouts will be keenly watching the Medicine tussle tomorrow.

Medicine Workout

The doctors also worked out yesterday afternoon on the Campus. Last year's champs went through a brisk workout and are ready to take all comers including Law. Rivalry between these two factions has been intense during the last seven years, and it is expected that many a graduate of both Law and Medicine will be on deck when these two squads stack up against one another in the near future.

The doctors have lost through graduation such men as Gibbons and Altimas, but several promising American college stars are expected to fill the bill. Diminutive Tarbox, hero of many a former Med victory, will again be calling signals for the sawbones, and it is known that the tricky keyman has quite a few wise plays to pull off.

With two heavy contests scheduled for this week it is understood that the Montreal Police department will lend their aid to hold the mob in check. In any case, the field of honour should draw the majority of the student body.

To Bury Beret Soon

U. of M. Annual Ceremony Set For 18th

The Annual Ceremony of the "Burying of the Beret" at the University of Montreal will be held this year on the evening of Saturday, October the 18th.

This affair has become one of importance, not only to the University itself, but to the city at large. Members of the City Council, and occasionally the Mayor, have taken part in the festivities, singing lustily along with the undergraduates.

The classic "beret" is carried in state through the streets, the procession attracting large crowds all the way from the University to Fletcher's Field.

Each year the undergraduates try to add some new feature to the proceedings, but the plans for this year's innovation have not yet been disclosed.

English Rugbyists Oppose Bankers

Second MacTier Cup Game Today on Campus

McGill's English Rugby squad, meets the Bank of Montreal Rugger this afternoon on the Campus at 3.30 in another MacTier Cup match. As was inadvertently stated in Monday's issue of the 'Daily', the McGill squad, by their victory over Canadian Vickers last Saturday won their first game in this series. The latter match was not an exhibition affair.

It will be remembered that in last year's tussle the Bank of Montreal twelve defeated the redmen, the former squad reputed to have the best pack of forwards in the city. McGill were weakened somewhat by the loss of Powers, former Dalhousie man who showed up well on Saturday last. He is now on the injured list. Fogarty, another smart McGill player, is also out of condition. The Bankers are an exceptionally clean playing team and are considered one of the best in the MacTier Cup League. The red and white English rugbyists should no doubt gather plenty of prestige if they win out today.

The line up:— Bank of Montreal:— Keast, Walters, Grant, Hawkins, Bayly, Spooner, Hawke, Malcolm, Ward, Firman, Tudman, Hamilton B. Morwood, D. Morwood, Brown

McGill:—Luke, Hanbury, Skinner, Price Nelson, McNutt, Close, Sturberg, Hatfield, Woods, Wootton Rice Chalmers, Butterfield, Dougan, Davidson, Deathe.

Al Swabey Lines up As Kicking Half

PRACTICE HARD

Great Improvement Noted in Line Play, And Defensive Structure

Hard work, and early hours, are coach Forbes' instructions to the McGill football team this week, who are preparing for the big push against Varsity in Toronto Saturday, while Queens tackle a holstered Western aggregation.

Yesterday afternoon at Molson stadium was a day of real action, as the red team scrimmaged against a strong second team, running off several new plays in a manner that bodes no good for the blue and white come Saturday.

No definite information on the movements of St. Germain has been received as yet, and the famous half back was not out to practice yesterday. However, Al Swabey lined up with Doherty and Hammond on the back-field, and was lacing the ball 45 or 50 yards, whenever called upon. Lovering was not out for practice, still feeling the effects of his leg injury, and Kritzler is definitely out for a few days. It seems unlikely that he will dress for Saturday's opening tussle, which is a considerable blow to the pigskin chasers.

Don Young is fitting in well at quarter, and his long experience in the game should stand him in good stead, when forced into a tight corner. Young has been rated as one of the best outside wings in the game for many years, and has lost none of his skill since the years he was holding a regular berth on the Canadian champions of 1926 and 1927, the Ottawa Roughriders.

His vacated outside wing position on the red team is being capably taken care of by Hal. Chard, who displayed sensational form against M. A. A., and R. M. C. Fred Urquhart, at the other end of the line, may also be trusted to miss little, and bring the opposing ball carriers down hard, and often. Granger is another tackler, who should make life miserable for rival half backs, and the ex-quarterback, who is now holding down flying wing, is in great condition.

The linesmen have recovered from any pre-season injuries, and are concentrating on clipping practice. George McTeer was the only line casualty of the R. M. C. game, and the genial hockey captain, and crack middle wing, is now feeling fit once more. Wilson, McMoran, and Church, are newcomers to the line, and these three heavies are rounding into polished performers. Church was a member of the intercollegiate champions of 1928, but was out of the game last year, while McMoran had considerable experience with Bishop's college teams.

In fact Lennoxville has presented the senior team with three able performers in McMoran, Hammond, and Newton. The Capital City, are also well represented in Young, Church, and Matheson. However, be as it may Toronto may expect one smart, fighting red team, this week-end.

Van Wagner Speaks to Track Candidates

Films Shown of Famous Athletes in Action

Last night in the Physical Education building, Coach Van Wagner gave his field men some useful advice in the way of a short talk on the essential rules for every athlete who seriously intends making a team. He also ran off two films which gave the men an opportunity to study the style and form of various athletes, both of McGill and also of other colleges, Canadian and American.

One film showed McGill, Varsity and R.M.C. men in action in recent meets. Among the men of note were Ken Brown, Baker, etc. The other film was taken at one of the recent I.C.A.A.A. meets in the States, and showed the best of the American colleges in action, both in track and field and gave an opportunity to study their style and form in slow-motion.

The same movies will be shown to-night at the same place at eight o'clock and coach Van Wagner wants all those interested to turn up as he has something to say that will be of benefit to all track men.

The intercollegiate championship last year and all the members of the winning team will again be available this year. All who are interested in this sport are asked to turn out.

Junior Rugby

The Junior Rugby team this year is to be composed entirely of freshmen. The first game is to be held on Saturday, October 11th at Loyola. All freshmen who desire to make the team are asked to turn out this afternoon. The following are wanted especially:—Craig, Gilmore, Griffiths, McRobie, Carlsley, McLean, Johnson, Harrington, Byers, and any others who are interested. A captain will be elected this afternoon.

REACH THIRD ROUND

Seeded Players Attract Crowds Who Follow Games With Interest

THE weatherman provided another perfect setting yesterday, enabling the McGill tennis tourney for the Dr. Martin-trophy to advance to the third round. Two dozen matches were run off, in all, and another crowd lined the fences to watch Charlie Leslie and company, run through their matches in straight sets. Once again Bill Chipman, of all the seeded stars, had the hardest time in advancing to the next bracket. His opponent, Stew Ebbitt, gave him a merry battle, and did not lower his colours without a terrific struggle. The scores were, 9-7, 6-7, 6-4.

Beverley Mitchell, Ottawa's prospective contribution to the red and white tennis team, was going great guns, in the afternoon's play, and trimmed a strong player in Shallcross, 6-0, 6-2.

The results were: Henderson def. Crabtree, by default. Nicholas def. Borlight, 6-4, 6-4. Linton def. Gardner, 7-5, 6-0. Tutill def. Pimenoff, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. Farmer def. Payton, 6-1, 6-3. Kyle def. McMartin def. Houghton, 6-1, 7-5. The draw for this afternoon is as follows:

- 11.00—Leslie vs. Twichell.
- 12.00—Nicholas vs. winner of above match.
- 1.00—Arnold vs. Anglin. Hanbury vs. Wilson.
- 2.30—Farmer vs. Rodger.

Soccer Gossip

By Hat Trick

This afternoon the boys play the "Corinthians", a team from the Sun Life, at four o'clock in the Upper Stadium. Coach Finlay intends this as more or less of a practice game and will have most of the second string "probables" in action at one time or another.

The line up of the Corinthians could not be obtained last night but the Redmen who will be in uniform are:— Evelyn, Reese, Helwig, Peters, Owen, Estall, Watson, Nolan, Watt, Molloy, Williams, Rand, Sparks, Minnion, Zimmerman, Janikun, Smart Reid.

Herby Crabtree was around yesterday, he claims his leg is quite all right again and is anxious to get back into the game. However, the powers that be have decided that the speedy wing had better rest up until the end of the week.

Reg Violette is anxious to be moved back to the forward line as he feels that he could do himself more justice there than at half. The former inside right was doing some great work around the goals yesterday and he was putting the ball into the net consistently with hard fast shots. Vi was the top scorer of the Red team last year and it seems likely that, given the chance he could better his record this season.

Most of Last Year's College Track Champs Return

Unless many more freshmen turn out for the track teams, McGill's chances of winning the Intercollegiate championships in the future will be very slim. With the Freshman-Sophomore meet only a few days off, a very small number of men have signified their intention of participating in it.

The freshmen have won this meet almost every year and for this year's fresh to make a poor showing would be considered in track and field circles as violating tradition. Yet this is the state of affairs as they exist at the present time. It is not too late, however, to turn out for practice—better late than never. There are yet several days left in which to get into condition, and all who possess any class spirit and the least ability in any event are urged to report immediately at the Stadium where Coach Van Wagner is always prepared to give advice to those needing it. Fortunately for McGill the majority of the members of last year's senior team are back and are displaying good form at the Stadium. The only members of last year's team who are missing are:— (Continued on Page Four)

Ground Broken For Fountain

Viscount Willingdon to Accept Gift For Dominion

Ground has been broken in the hollow facing the Arts' Building in preparation for the foundation work of the marble fountain presented to the University by Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt-Whitney of New York City as a token of American-Canadian friendship. Formal ceremonies are tentatively set for Saturday, November the first, when an American Goodwill Committee through Dr. John H. Finley, as spokesman, will make the gift.

Viscount Willingdon, the Governor-General, is expected to attend and accept the token on behalf of the Dominion at large, while McGill will voice its acknowledgement through Chancellor E. W. Beatty and Sir Arthur Currie.

Artistic Design
The fountain consists of three male figures of heroic stature, bearing on their shoulders a basin bordered with floral carvings and standing on a slab to symbolize the strength of a land in the fertility of its soil. This art work is a replica of a bronze designed by Mrs. Whitney in 1925 and which was placed in Lima, Peru, as a gift from American residents.

It is interesting to note that Miss Ellen Ballou, a graduate of the McGill Conservatory of Music and well known to the music world, inaugurated the idea of securing funds from Americans and when she approached Mrs. Whitney, the latter promised to carve a fountain if the subscription movement was abandoned. This Miss Ballou consented to with the result that McGill campus will shortly be the site of a marble heroic group of infinite beauty.

In making the selection for the Rhodes Scholarships, the Literary and Scholastic ability and attainments of the applicant will be taken into consideration, as well as his exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates.

Further information and application blanks may be obtained from the Provincial Secretary, Mr. G. S. Stairs, K.C., 122 St. James St. West, Montreal, or from Mr. T. W. L. MacDermid, Assistant to Canadian Representative of the Rhodes Trust, P.O. Box 1989, Montreal.

Start Casting In Near Future

Casting for the first play would commence immediately, he said and he hoped that many would try out for parts as those who were disappointed would assuredly be given a chance in the "Workshop" department. He stressed the fact that in joining the club students were not so much helping it as they were improving themselves.

Students' Council
Millard Astwood, President of the Students Council spoke briefly on the relations of the players club with that body. While the players club is a body under the control of the council he wished his audience to realize that the control of the club was vested entirely in the hands of its own officers. The council merely provided a background for the club but was always ready to render assistance if necessary.

Several officials of the club then outlined the activities of their own departments. Charlie Yule announced the casting for the first play, the "Ivory Door" by A. A. Milne would be held in the players club office next Monday at five o'clock. He also spoke of the Bovey prize, offered for the writing of the best one act play, and he expressed the hope that there would be a somewhat larger entry for this, than there was last year.

Workshop Plays
Bill Maycock, Chairman of the Workshop Committee announced that the first two plays, "The Little Man" by Galworthy and "The Bishops Candlesticks" by Norman McKinnel would be produced on November the seventh. Two other series of plays would be given later in the year, one of which would include "The Proposal" by Chekov.

Stuart Ebbitt spoke briefly on the business end of the club, stressing the need for volunteers and he was followed by Eric Allison, head of the program committee who outlined his ideas for "bigger and better programs."

After the meeting, at the invitation of the executive, most of those present went downstairs to inspect the new room and from the pleased exclamations on every side it may be judged that this innovation is a complete success.

"What! You refuse to cash my check?"
"But you don't yourself this morning!"

Indiana Freshettes Favor Dormitories

(By Exchange Service)

Bloomington, Ind.—That dormitories attract more girls at Indiana university than any other type of residence, especially first year girls, is revealed by figures showing the housing of freshman women for the year 1929-1930, issued by the office of the Dean of Women.

One hundred four freshmen will live at Memorial and Residence halls this year as compared to 96 in sorority houses and 89 in private homes. Forty women of the freshman class from Bloomington will live in their own homes. Work for room and board in private homes has been chosen by 37 Indiana coeds.

How Money is Raised

The total amount of money which will be earned by girls in this form will be $10,656 a semester estimating that each girl will be paid the equivalent of eight dollars a week the report shows. Fifty-eight hundred dollars in scholarships will contribute toward the payment of expenses of 83 girls for their first year. These are in the form of Tri Kappa and county awards for excellence in scholarship during high school.

An unusually large number of "A" students is beginning work in the University this fall, 56 being listed in the class of 1934. Five colored girls are enrolled in the class.

Geneticist Joins Botanical Staff

Institute, just outside of London, where he has been for the past three years.

When at the University of Alberta, Professor Huxkins commenced a study of the origin of false wild oats, and he continued his research work on this subject when in London where he discovered the mechanism of inheritance by which these "sports" arise.

Interests are Scientific

Dr. Huxkins' interests are purely scientific, although the practical application of the findings of his research work is receiving attention. At London, he made an intensive study of the origin of speltoid mutations of wheat, of "Rogue" tomatoes, of the inheritance of double flowers in garden stocks, as well as general research on inheritance in grasses. He has also published a paper on the inheritance of defective teeth in human beings. The scope of his work is indeed varied.

Dr. R. Ruggles Gates, his former teacher, has referred to the new McGill professor as "a geneticist and cytologist who has done work of first class importance," while Professor R. Newton said of him: "There seems no doubt that Dr. Huxkins should be rated as one of the most promising geneticists of the rising generation. In

R.V.C. Freshettes Elect Officers

Alice Johansson Occupies Presidential Chair

The Freshman class of R.V.C. yesterday elected their executive for the coming year. Gathered in Moyse Hall, the freshettes spent the latter part of the English lecture in selecting class officials. Although handicapped by the fact that the girls have not yet had a chance to become properly acquainted, a full slate of officers was named.

The following were elected: President, Alice Johansson; Vice-President, Alma Howard; Secretary-Treasurer, Betty Hurry; Sport Manager, Cynthia Bazin; Tennis Manager, Audrey Doble; Basketball Manager, Daphne Seaman; Hockey Manager, Ragnhilde Tall; Poster Manager, Sally Ward; Representative to the Societe Francaise, Hilda Cotton; Representative to R.V.C. Music Club, Elena MacDonald; Representative to Delta Sigma Society, Margaret; Reporter to the Daily, Janet Cameron.

Freshmen Meet Sophs in Track Meet on Friday

ing are Blenner, low hurdle record-holder, and Lud Horn former intercollegiate high jump titleholder and hurd, half-mile. Their places, however, are expected to be filled by capable men.

All the winners of last year's field events are out again and in most cases are showing great improvement. This is especially true of Bert Costello who has hurled the discus over 113 feet in practise recently. Cummings who broke the Javelin throw record last year was again out yesterday heaving the aforementioned weapon for great distances.

While the field event positions will be filled by men who are almost certain of repeating last year's successes there are several vacancies in most of the short distance track event. Any good man in the 100, 220 and the 440 will be most welcome. The greatest competition will take place in the one and three mile events. There are at least five good men fighting for a place in the former event, while in the three mile run outstanding among the candidates are Palmer, Jacobs and Calhoun.

With Captain Drew and Howie Baker in fine shape at the hurdles, McGill should have little difficulty in winning first and second places. These high hurdles are two of the greatest ever to represent McGill, in that event. Nor is that all. Drew, besides winning the high hurdles, came out victor in the high jump and broad jump. It was only an injured wrist which kept him from competing in the shot put which he won the year before. Baker has been showing great style in the low hurdles, which event he won last year in the intercollegiate games.

Coach Van Wagner urges all those who intend to participate in the Frosh-Soph meet to sign their names on the sheet posted in the field house at the Stadium as early as possible.

The radio and the telephone have helped to do away with face to face conversation, and our conversation is becoming trivial and thoughtless. We should fit our conversation to our company, however, and not always talk on intellectual topics.

The third lamp is debate, "the Scotchman's delight because it is the only form of intellectual pleasure which may be indulged in free of charge." Mr. Thompson recommends a recent book, "Crooked and Straight Thinking" by Dr. Thonless, to improve our standards of debating. Our political debates in Canada have sunk to a deplorably low level, and the last election campaign was only an orgy of personalities.

Still another lamp is criticism. An ability to make a critical study of books and plays is a sign of culture. Wit and humor is a particularly illuminating lamp. The distinction between these words is somewhat difficult to add that he has also first rate teaching ability.

Dr. Huxkins has just arrived from England and will take up his duties under the department of botany immediately. He is accompanied by S. G. Smith, who is his research assistant, and who was with him at the John Innes Horticultural Institute. Dr. Huxkins is very pleased with the facilities at his disposal at the university, and is looking forward to his work here.

The science of genetics, which has to do with heredity in plants and animals, has been in existence for only about thirty years, the laws of inheritance (Mendel) having been rediscovered in 1900. This young science has made astonishing strides in the elucidation of nature of inheritance and of its practical application in plant and animal breeding. Looking forward to the increased importance of this study in the near future, McGill authorities have seen fit to enlarge the scope of their activities in this direction.

cult to state. Wit is sudden, spontaneous, and sometimes sharp and cruel; humour is deeper and always kindly and genial.

Bible is Fundamental Book

The next lamp is literature, which gives us fellowship with the great minds of the race. The speaker considers the Bible as the fundamental book. The Vulgate is an example of beautiful, sonorous prose. Chaucer, Scott, Shakespeare, Dickens and Thackeray are also considered fundamental by many. Addison is always considered as the model which we must follow if we hope to attain a beautiful prose style.

In concluding, the speaker said that the lamps of culture should lead to the lamp of toleration. The meeting was then thrown open to discussion, and several of the members took exception to Mr. Thompson's remarks. Many seemed to think that culture is not the possession of knowledge but something intangible which comes as the result of it. A man may be cultured without being well-educated, or be well-educated and yet have no outward appearance of culture.

S.P.E. students are urged to be present.
